

Moral Money

April 27, 2022

Smart read

<https://www.ft.com/content/f1ae5527-b3af-4244-897a-823732948fd1?accessToken=zWAAAYBq7wzkkdPxrlUns69CRNOJeoI3MpSP0Q.MEQCIAiUYgoZA6YBZTn54KGyri9PmA2EhUdTvZ0D8aGLbHwVAiArhQulwvRJ7RbeSpkEsoPuYQ55glnshnJccF-wUqmcFg&sharetype=gift?token=31c14f18-ac3d-4993-b31a-37523f27881b>

Disney's fight over the "Don't Say Gay" law with Florida's governor has highlighted the political risks companies face in a fractured US democracy. But corporate America has "created and enabled" those threats, the Center for Political Accountability argues in a new study of how corporate funds have been used to subvert US democratic norms. Companies resuming donations to Republicans who voted to overturn the 2020 election are "practising politics as usual when the whole landscape has changed", warns CPA president Bruce Freed.